The higher the reputation of the school the more are its graduates sought. Getting ahead after graduation means hard, dogged work. A technical graduate has to learn many things before he gets his bearings in practical engineering. Many electric companies have established apprenticeship courses for technical graduates, where they may start in the ranks and work through the various departments to a thorough experience and grasp of the whole business. There are opportunities for a considerable number of technically trained men in the sales departments of the manufacturing companies. The sales engineer who combines scientific knowledge with business ability, is a well paid man. Salaries of $2,000 to $2,500 a year are not uncommon for such work and a man of marked ability might go several thousands higher. The contracting field has proved profitable to engineers who possess business...
