It represents the district of the large islands of Panay, Cebu, and Negros, with several smaller islands. A large part of the traders are mestizos-Chinos, many of whom have accumulated considerable property. The third city of importance is Cebu, the capital of the island by that name, and was the first city founded by the Spanish. It has the most celebrated cathedral on the islands, many thousands of pilgrims visiting annually the shrine of the Holy Child of Cebu. The best roads in the Philippines are to be found on this island, but the inhabitants have lacked the energy and thrift to make Cebu the port it should be. CHAPTER IX. STRUGGLES FOR LIBERTY. SO far the situation has been viewed from the vantage-ground of the Spanish; but there is another side to these centuries of foreign colonisation, another and deeper shade to the scenes of tyranny and revolution. Over six-millions of native born inhabitants, though of mixed races, and nearly one-fourth of them outlaws of the jungles, lagoons, and the mountains, have a story of their own waiting for the historian to do it justice. It is not a record that redounds wholly to their credit. Whom the gods would destroy they first make mad, seems to have been the policy of the Spaniards in their treatment of the Philipinos, and the servant must have been other than human had he not retaliated in the manner of his master. As has been stated,...
