Excerpt: . . . perfect in all its workings as represented; if the plaintiff would do that he was ready to receive the machine and do his part, and that he would want a two weeks trial before accepting it. On August 13th the plaintiff replied, We will guarantee that our register is perfectly reliable and a correct adder; we will have no objection to letting you have the register upon ten days trial. On August 19th the plaintiff wrote the defendant, As per your request, we notified the rail road company to deliver the register to you, and trust miw;11 meet with your approval. It appears that in accordanca with this letter, the railroad company delivered the machine to McGregor, and that when he tried it, not peing satisfied with it, he refused to accept it, and returried it to the railroad for the plaintiff; and he likewise refused to pay the cash in settlement or to sign the eigttt notes. VVhcreupon the plaintiff brought its suit against the defendant on an account and on the eoutneetfl The defendant filed the general issue, and also a special plea as follows: The consideration of plaintiffis alleged claim was a certain wood-case cash-register with automatic adding attachment. Plaintiff represented to defendant that said cash-register would register an accurate and correct account of each and every cash sale made and deposited in said register by defendant or his salesmen during each days business, and would also keep an accurate account...
